

The map displays a grid of alphanumeric codes across Europe and North Africa. The codes are organized into three main groups: JN (JN01 to JN99), JM (JM01 to JM99), and KN (KN01 to KN99). A dense network of red location pins is overlaid on the map, with many pins connected by green lines, suggesting a network of points of interest or data collection sites. The map includes labels for various countries and regions, such as France, Germany, Italy, Spain, and North Africa, as well as major cities like Paris, Berlin, Rome, and London. The grid lines are blue, and the background is a light beige color.
